- Groups and Societies - £26 (£30 - 2 copies)
- Students - £10 (1 copy of each journal)
- Overseas rates as above, plus postage.

DIRECTIONS TO THE BAY HOTEL

Burntisland Road, Kinghorn, Fife KY3 9YE

BY CAR: The hotel is on the coast road A921 between Burntisland and Kinghorn, beside Pettycur Bay Caravan Park. Road access is east of the hotel; go past reception (steep hill) and bear left behind the hotel. The function suites are at the west end of the hotel. There is parking all around; if delivering display material, the car park west of the hotel is closest to the side entrance to the Heritage suite.

BY TRAIN: Kinghorn station is 0.9 miles away. There is a half hourly local service which links to mainline stations (Edinburgh to Dundee; Kinghorn is 4 minutes from Kirkcaldy).

BY BUS: Stagecoach 7 or 7A: 3 per hour from Kirkcaldy or Dunfermline via Inverkeithing. Bus stops are near rail station & outside hotel.

SALT, SUN & SHIVERING

Scots at the Seaside 1750-2000

SCOTTISH LOCAL HISTORY FORUM
SPRING CONFERENCE
& LOCAL HISTORY MINI FAIR
FRIDAY 26 APRIL 2013
BAY HOTEL, KINGHORN, FIFE

SLHF SPRING CONFERENCE

*Salt, Sun and Shivering:
Scots at the Seaside 1750-2000*

Friday 26 April 2013

Bay Hotel (Heritage Suite)
Burntisland Road, Kinghorn, Fife

As Spring heralds the hope of a Summer worthy of the name, what could be better than a trip to the seaside?

Let's revisit the golden memories of the days when the sun always shone, ice cream was a taste of paradise, the water was inviting. Or perhaps the rain was lashing a deserted prom, wind was whipping up the sand as you cowered behind a windbreak, and the chittery-bite (or shivery-bite) was an essential reward for supreme courage in the face of freezing water.

How and why did seaside resorts develop and decline? When did they become a place for fun, recreation and holidays? What was the seaside experience for our ancestors? With an emphasis on the Scottish seaside, this conference also sets the scene in a UK context.

The setting is ideal – the Bay Hotel overlooks the beach at Pettycur Bay. The conference should interest local, family, and social historians, people involved with tourism – and anyone who has holidayed at the seaside.

MINI LOCAL HISTORY FAIR

During the lunch break we invite local history organisations to take part in a mini fair: about 10 tables and display boards are available – first come, first served!
